

Elegy to Tears

Federico Arcos

Tears
have no frontiers;
carry no passport;
nor require a visa.
Tears
are international;
as affection,
tenderness,
love.
Tears
have no fatherland;
they are universal.
Tears
is the man;
is the woman,
—the mother—,
is the child.
To suffer
is what is human and human is the people.
To suffer is the flesh
rendered from the people which raises a moan
and sheds tears.
And the people are here;
and in the antipode,
in the septentrion,
in the capricorn.
The people are
everywhere,
because to suffer
is the people;
people, of the peoples
which cover the Earth.
This. Earth
that was taken from the people;
that was taken
from the man;
the woman,
—the mother—,
the child.
This Earth
which must be reconquered
because it belongs to us.
Make it ours
Ours. Everyone's.
Without borders
and without fatherlands.
And, thus put an end
to suffering
and put an end
to tears.

The Anarchist Library
Anti-Copyright

Federico Arcos
Elegy to Tears

sent by friend of author

theanarchistlibrary.org